

CIBUS Fresh is voluntarily recalling products containing iceberg lettuce due to possible contamination of Cyclospora (products are listed below) related to the ongoing Taylor Farms de Mexico recall.

CIBUS Fresh has ceased producing and distributing products with Taylor Farms Mexico product as the company and FDA continue their investigation.

Use or consumption of products contaminated with Cyclospora may result in illness. Individuals infected with Cyclospora can experience watery diarrhea, with frequent bowel movements. Other common symptoms include loss of appetite, weight loss, stomach cramps/pain, bloating, increased gas, nausea, and fatigue. People may also experience vomiting, body aches, headache, low-grade fever, and other flu-like symptoms. Some people who are infected with Cyclospora do not have any symptoms. If not treated, the illness may lead to dehydration and severe complications that may require higher levels of care. These complications may last from a few days to a month or longer and can be more severe for those with weakened immune systems. Symptoms may seem to go away and then return one or more times (relapse).

The product was distributed to 7 states: Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Mississippi, Ohio, and Tennessee.

No other products are affected or are involved in this recall. No illnesses have been reported to date.
